Tuition Free Programs

A number of universities are offering tuition free programs for graduating high school students. Lawrence H. Summers, former president of Harvard University, stated that talented, undergraduate students from low-income families can attend Harvard tuition free. Locally, students have enrolled into college because of a tuition free program. Due to their partnership with the Urban Alliance Foundation, prospective nursing students at the University of the District of Columbia have benefited from a tuition free education. For more information, contact Harvard University's financial aid office at (617) 495-1581. Or, contact Ms. Beshon Smith at bsmith@urbanalliance.org for enrollment into the UDC's nursing program.
