BACKGROUND:

The Prince George's County Public Debate League will kick off its sophomore debate season with more than 300 students from Prince George's County public middle and high schools.

High school students will engage in public forum debate, while middle school students will use the Parliamentary style of debate. Public forum debate involves opposing teams of two, debating a topic concerning a current event. Parliamentary debate competes with a three person team. Teams present arguments supporting their side while contesting arguments of the other team.

The League is affiliated with the National Speech and Debate Association.
